Playa Blanca

Playa Blanca is a small cosy town with an esplanade offering a magnificent view to Fuerteventura and Lobos. The pedestrian zone offers shopping facilities as well as medical care. Fishing Village on the south side of the island and also a port for the car ferry to Fuerteventura and the occasional cruise liner. There are three lovely white sandy beaches, which are amongst the best in the island. The sea front is traffic free with a lovely coastal path linking the beaches. There are some very good restaurants overlooking the sea. The local supermarkets are the last place to take a drink on board before heading to the near by Papagayo beaches.

Playa Dorada Beach 10 minutes walk from villa

Papagayo

Some of the nicest beaches in the canaries, consisting of five coves each with golden sand. Reached by crossing almost desert type tracks, there are no properties or facilities. You will find nudists on the beaches – although it's not compulsory. There is a sheltered corner of the island and can be reached from either Playa Blanca or Femes. Make Sure you take a drink with you. A very good swimming, although some of the secluded cove beaches are difficult to access. There is a ferryboat that will take you to these beaches which goes hourly from the harbour and will collect you later in the afternoon.
